LONGENECKER IS Thirty-second Warders Sound the Keynote of the Spring

They Want a Fighting Alderman.

Campaign.

And They Find the Right Candidate in the Big ex-State's Attorney.

A life-sized and potent boom for ex-State's Attorney Joel M. Longenecker for Alderman of the Thirtysecond Ward was sent careering on its way by 300 enthusiastic Republicans of the ward Tuesday night at a crowded meeting held in Axford's Hall, at the corner of 45th street and Cottage Grove avenue. Judge Longenecker is an example of a man literally forced to run for office by the importunities of his friends, the business and social leaders of the ward, who want to see his sturdy personality in the Council, where his wellknown ability as a fighter and as a party: foe to wrong of every kind will make his presence a power for good and a power for the party.

Though at first rejuctant to make prohibition district in this ward; the race, Judge Longenecker will make a vigorous campaign new that he is in the field, and the enthusiasm of the 300 party workers and party leaders who cheered him to the echo Tuesday night leaves little doubt of the result.

Thomas Quincey was chosen chairman of the meeting and led off in the tributes to Judge Longenecker' sterling ability. Ex-Gov. John M. Hamniton followed with an eloquent address, holding the Democratic party up to shame for the financial distress into which it has plunged the country, and declaring that the indhstrial rebellion it has inaugurated against the wealth and happiness of the people has already caused more suffering and more actual loss of capital than the rebellion it stirred up in 1861 and in the five years of the war. The Republicans of the Thirty-second Ward, he declared, could strike a note which would be heard in the final overthrow of Democracy in 1896 by putting to the front such a man as Judge Longenecker.

Senator Condee declared that several candidates had withdrawn since Judge Longenecker entered the race and all ought to withdraw, as his George L. Warner. election would lay at rest all bicker- Herman G. Phillips ings and quarrels which had plagued the party in the ward during the last R. H. Kerr, two years.

candidates who had withdrawn in favor of Judge Longenecker, made red-hot speeches in his support, and George W. Crawford introduced the following resolutions:

WHEREAS. The Thirty-second Ward stands second to none in fealty to the Republican And whereas, barmony is the first element to be considered; And whereas the citizens of this ward are desirous of maintaining the present

And whereas, experience, force knowledge are requisite to maintain our present condition in this respect;

Resolved. That in the interest of the ward in all respects, and also the Republican party, the nomination of the Hon. Joel M. Longenecker for Alderman is hereby inlorsed, and we hereby pledge him our earty support.

Mr. Crawford, Edwin Noble, Maj. Calkins and George Morgan spoke in favor of the resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, after which Judge Longnecker was escorted to the platform, where he made a happy speech, accepting the honor and the duty offered him, and declaring his fealty to the Republican party and to Alderman Dan W. Ackerman The best work in the Council is done by quiet and reputable men and in an unostentatious manner, and it is just in this way that Alderman Ackerman, of the Twenty-eighth Ward, has made his reputation with those behind the scenes. Mr. Ackerman is a wealthy man, and upon entering the Council transferred to his son a lucrative fuel business, so that he might the better attend to his new duties. His election upon the last occasion was a notable schievement incompany to the control of the con achievement, inasmuch as he carried the entire eleven precincts comprising the ward for the Republican party. Such a fact bears eloquent testimony to the personal popularity and worth of Mr. Ackerman, and of his tremendous hold upon the Twentyeighth. In the Council the Alderman has proved himself quite an acquisition, and his observations are closely followed. As chairman on Bridewell, he has been instrumental in bringing about some much-needed his next novel. reforms in that over-crowded institution. This has been a labor of love with Mr. Ackerman, who is something of a philanthropist in a quiet way. He is also a good-hearted man, and his home at the corner of Hart avenue and Thirty-ninth street is often the scene of enjoyable social functions. He is a prominent member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Order of Foresters. Personally he is a most estimable gentleman, frank and of agreeable address.

Alderman Ackerman is vitally interested in the future of his ward, and may be depended upon to attend to its the trior le alliance (Germany, Austria and Italy,) but that the latter has interests. He has consented to submit his name for re-election and his services will certainly be retained. It would be difficult to fill his place in the council, where his presence is

The Professor and the Indians. An old army man tells a good story of the adventures of a learned Yale college professor among the Sloux of the Yellowstone this year before the Custer massacre. A number of scientific and even "It was between he and I." tific men from the Smithsonian Institu-tion and Yale College were on an expe-dition under the convoy of a large mili-tary escort, and as the Indians were dangerous and had killed two huntsmen of the party strict orders were issued that no one should leave the camp without permission.

One day the worst old fellow in the One day the worst old follow in the crowd, a bugolist, who wore two pair of glasses, one red and one green, managed to get out of the sight of his detail, and wandered two or three miles away. He ran plump into a gang of Sioux. He walked up to them and offered to shake hands. They grabbed him, and the first thing they did was was to dive into a big green baize bag he carried. The pulled out lizards and pleces of clay and bits of rocks and bugs, and the worst assortment of truck imaginable. Just about this time the old professor caught sight of a peculiar-looking bug. He caught it, pulled out his glass, and began to study it. That settled it. An Indian took him by the hand, led him to a hill close by, and, pointing to the army below, by, and, pointing to the army below, said:

"Go." He came back and said that the soldiers totally misunderstood the In-

"Why, I found them the most polite and courteous of people," said he to General Custer. But an old chief afterward told me they would not have him stay in that country for anything on earth.

They concluded from his conduct that he was insane, and their reverence and dread of an insane person is so great that they never could be persuaded to injure one.

cle is already worth a trip to the tower. It is believed that the cold nights in January will build up a mass of ice fifty feet in height and twenty feet in diameter. A stream of water plays on the icicle at all times when the therometer shows freezing weather. Few Californians have over seen a large ictele, and tourists would go into eesta-sies over such a one as could be formed in Truckee.-San Francisco Chroniele.

with those otherwise good people who persist, in conversation, in using "I" and "he" in the objective? Most of these people know better, though some of them are college graduates; though they would never, of course, say. "Will you go with I?" The number of people who use this sole-cism is apparently increasing. The Listener has heard public school-teachers use it; and the sound of it is not altogether unfamiliar in what is called good society, though "me and him did it" is not a whit more ungrammatical than "between you and I." Evidently some people use the phrase without knowing that they do it; but why should they? Still other people, who have been taught that 'me and him went' is not correct, ignorantly suppose that "between you and me" is also un-grammatical. In this case, of course, the mistake is due to pure ignorance, and no one can complain of it, befortune rather than a fault. But when people who have been to school use the nominative case in the objective, and say "between you and I," or "I will let you and he know," one feels like projecting some con-venient article of furniture at them. Perhaps some form of violence will have to be resorted to in order to
